According to our records, the manufacturer warranty on your hearing instrument(s) will expire on:

Hearing instruments can be damaged by ear wax, moisture and every day wear and tear. It is important that we inspect them before your warranty runs out. If we check your instrument(s) and find anything wrong, we will repair them in our office or send them to the manufacture to be repaired under warranty.

Have you had your hearing checked recently? As you know, your hearing can change over time. If you are due to have your hearing checked we could perform a hearing screening to ensure you are hearing as well as possible. If a significant change is detected, we may need to make adjustments to your current instruments.

Let's solve any problems you may be having while you are still covered under warranty.

Please call our office before your warranty expiration date to schedule your next appointment.
